B-G To Be Dag's Guest During New York Visit

White House Due To Make Statement

POST Political Reporter

Prime Minister Ben-Gurion yesterday received an invitation from the U.S. Secretary General to be his guest in New York during his forthcoming visit to the U.S.

In reply to Mr. Ben-Gurion's acceptance of his invitation, Mr. Hammarskjold last night sent an additional cable to the Prime Minister asking him whether he would also be accompanied by Mrs. Paula Ben-Gurion and also suggesting that they continue the discussion they had last year at Sde Boker on Buddhism.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said details of the visit were being worked out and would be announced later.

The Secretary-General's invitation was cabled to Mr. Ben-Gurion on Monday, inviting the Prime Minister to be his guest "sometime during his visit to this country," according to an official statement.

Mr. Hammarskjold also said he would "be pleased to be available for such discussions at the U.N. as Mr. Ben-Gurion would find useful and convenient."

Kollek Leaves

The Director-General of the Prime Minister's Office, Mr. Teddy Kollek, left for the U.S. by air yesterday to prepare the details of the Premier's visit. Kollek told reporters that he would remain in the U.S. for 10 days.

Foreign diplomatic observers in Israel last night expected an official White House announcement within the next few days on the Prime Minister's visit to the U.S.

While he is the guest of Mr. Hammarskjold, with whom he shares a common interest in poetry and the classics, Mr. Ben-Gurion could stay either at the Secretary-General's flat in New York or at his country estate at Brewster, some 50 kms. from Tel Aviv.

The two are expected to confer at length on the Middle East situation with special reference to recent border troubles and the long-standing boycott of Israel by the U.A.R. authorities controlling the Suez Canal.

Quiet Diplomacy

Mr. Hammarskjold said recently that indications were that the Middle East situation was deteriorating, but he continued willing to press "quiet diplomacy" to ease the region's tensions.

His invitation to Mr. Ben-Gurion was seen as a practical step in that direction.

The Secretary-General returned Monday morning from a brief trip to Sweden. It was presumed that he sent the invitation through Mr. Josef Weizman, acting head of the Israeli U.N. delegation, with whom he had a meeting Monday night.

Meanwhile, diplomatic quarters in New York appeared to be more hopeful about the Middle East situation than they were last week.

MORE RAIN

More rain can be expected today, according to the weatherman.

Rain fell through most of the country yesterday. In fact, it was preceded by strong northern winds that kicked up a violent two-hour dust storm.

Farmers saw no hope that their crops would be saved but said that if the rain continued it would help pasture.

The forecast is "partly cloudy to cloudy, with occasional rain."

Hussein Lashes 'Certain Arab Leaders' for 'Palestine' Stand

King Hussein yesterday lashed out at Arab leaders who still criticize the unity of the east and west banks of the Jordan River. He criticized "certain Arab leaders" for their disregard of the welfare of the Arab people.

In a speech over Amman Radio, the Jordan monarch said that rabble-rousing statements by such leaders do not lessen the "danger of Zionism and Communism." Action and not words would have paid for a Arab military operation to eliminate the Pioneers and other minority groups.

He warned, "The balance between us and the enemy still causes us concern... In the world today there are signs which do not give Arabs cause for optimism."

After League Failure

Hussein was speaking one day after the Arab League Council in Cairo adopted final resolutions after 22 secret sessions. While agreeing that the Arab states failed to agree on proposals for the creation of a "Palestine state."

The sole aim of statements against the "unity of Jordan" is to spread confusion among Arabs, he said, adding that after 12 years, the Arab world still suffers from ignorance, and personal ambition, he notes, the policy of many Arab politicians, he asserted.

The Jordan press yesterday said the League in effect had adopted a resolution that the "Fatherland" must first be liberated before there can be any talk of the future of Palestine.

The Beirut press described the League session as a failure. The independent "Al Nahar" described itself as "oriental fortress" while "Orient" showed the triumph of the Jordanian movements over those of Abu Nidal.

Radios said the League meeting again showed Nasrallah's intent to control another part of Palestine in addition to the Gaza Strip.

Gaza Governor Visits Damascus

The Egyptian Minister of the Gaza Strip, General Moustafa El Damaski, has arrived in Damascus according to Beirut radio yesterday.

He came at the head of 30 Palestine Arab members of the National Union in the Gaza Strip, and said they will discuss the formation of a Palestine National Union.

Syria link with that in the Gaza Strip, and form a "spine" to annihilate Israel and set up a Palestine regime."

Syrians Open Fire On Fisherman

Jerusalem Post Reporter

LIBERIA.—A young fisherman who was shot by Syrian troops Tuesday was shot at from the Syrian village of Dugga on the eastern shore of Lake Kinneret. Tomas Falk, 19, was drawing in his nets, aided by two other men when fire was opened at him. No one was injured.

Falk had eight net stakes from him the night before the latest incident.

On Tuesday, U.N. Observers investigated complaints by farmers from Kibbutz Shamir that the Syrians had damaged their fields with their tractors and water tanks causing the water level in irrigation ditches to fall unusually low.

NEW GUINEAN FRANC IN CIRCULATION

CONAKRY, Guinea (Reuter) — Premier Sekou Toure announced on Tuesday that new currency, the Guinean franc, has gone into circulation. He said one new Guinean franc is worth two French francs (about a half-penny Sterling) — the same as the former currency, the French African franc.

Knesset Body Meets Water Problems

Iraq's water problems and the Jordan River diversion project were discussed yesterday by the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee.

Mr. Akbar Wissam, the Director of Talul, the Israel Water Planning authority, gave a detailed report on the Jordan River project and the various stages of its implementation.

Mr. Gordon Avner, the Director of the Foreign Ministry's U.N. division, reported to the Committee on the political aspects of the project.

Southern Senators Filibuster Against U.S. Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (Reuter). — The white-dominated Capitol building here began to take on the appearance of a wartime air raid shelter on Tuesday as the Senate opened its second 24 hours of non-stop debate on the Civil Rights Bill.

Senate leaders had agreed to vote in shifts and as many body counts as possible, while the Senate restaurant provided a round-the-clock cafeteria service.

Senate officers were also on shift work to be at hand to answer the demands of the 200 senators by telephone or telegram. The most strenuous was a 24-hour filibuster by 16 Southern senators opposing the bill, which would guarantee voting and other elimination of discrimination in Negroes and other minority groups.

Vote to Avoid Vote

NEW YORK.—Negotiations are now going on between the Jewish Agency and the local Welfare Funds with a view to enlarging the Agency as an American body in control of the spending of funds raised for Israel. Dr. Nathan Goldmann, Chairman of the Jewish Agency told a press conference here on Tuesday.

Dr. Goldmann made it clear that the Agency had informed the various Israel institutions which received funds from the Treasury on the creation of a "Palestine state."

Early yesterday the Senate voted 36 to six to continue the debate indefinitely. Only motion to "sustain" (stop) the Senate's filibuster was defeated.

Senate leaders hoped to end the debate by 10 p.m. yesterday evening.

Kamerun 'Rebel' Chief Offers Peace

ACRA (Reuters). — Dr. Feodor Roland Maumie, leader of the opposition Union of Kamerun Peoples (U.P.C.) said here yesterday he had sent a memorandum to the Camerun Government which would bring "immediate peace" to the newly independent but strife-torn country.

He told a press conference that his party had demanded certain guarantees from the Kamerun Government.

These were: withdrawal of all foreign troops at present in the republic; a total and unconditional independence; and the closing of "concentration camps."

If these guarantees were given, the U.P.C. would be prepared to take part in a general election in Kamerun, on condition that it be postponed from April 10 to sometime in July, Dr. Maumie said.

In addition, his party would be ready to call a cease-fire in the conflict, consider not to carry out any "policy of vengeance" against political adversaries, carry out a policy of national union and refrain from proclaiming a revolutionary Kamerun Government.

In reply to a question, Dr. Maumie said his party would accept the results of any democratically conducted elections.

Dr. Maumie, who has been living in exile from Kamerun and residing in Cairo, Conakry and Accra for the past three years, told another questioner that between 10,000 and 50,000 persons were fighting for the U.P.C. cause in Kamerun at present.

The five visiting West German parliamentarians of the Social Democratic Party on Tuesday visited the Histadrut Executive and met with Mr. E. Hayut, of the Political Department, and Mr. Y. Mozes, head of the Ministry of the Interior.

New Income Tax Proposals To Be Approved Tomorrow

Jerusalem Post Economic Reporter

Income tax officials have completed the last details of the Ministerial Economic Committee tomorrow for final approval, according to informed circles in Jerusalem.

These proposals envisage reducing the size of successive income brackets on which rising tax rates are imposed, and a corresponding increase in the size of tax rates.

For example,bitrate tax rates will increase progressively from a maximum of 25 per cent on the first IL1,000 above the basic personal and family exemptions, up to a maximum of 60 per cent on income above IL1,700, with the income brackets subject to different rates of progression.

Under the new proposals the income brackets will progress by units of IL1,000 after the first bracket of IL2,000. Instead of starting off at a minimum rate of 25 per cent on the first IL1,000 (after the basic personal and family exemptions), the new scale starts off at a rate of 25 per cent on the first IL1,000, 25 per cent on the next IL1,000, 30 per cent on the next IL1,000, 45 per cent on the next IL1,000.

A minimum tax of 60 per cent will now be payable even when taxable income reaches the IL21,500 level. From these figures it is evident that the main part of whatever tax relief is afforded by these proposals is given to the middle and higher income brackets.

Compromise

While these proposals are in essence a compromise between the Progressive Party for tax relief for the higher income brackets, and the Histadrut's desire for lower income brackets should be included in any general tax relief, other proposed tax changes have come in for much criticism.

It is understood that the Histadrut will strongly oppose the proposal to impose a 25 per cent flat tax on severance pay. These groups feel that severance pay is given to the dismissed worker to fit him over a difficult period of readjustment, until he finds a new job, and it would be unfair to tax such income.

The Histadrut is also understood to be opposed to the Treasury's proposal abolishing the deduction on professional literature allowances granted to academic workers.

In the meantime, the Treasury is still resolved to tax income received from pensions paid under the Israeli Government for Compensation for Nazi Victims. Yesterday the Director-General of the Ministry of Finance, Dr. Y. Avnon; the Director of the Bank of Israel's Research Department, Mr. D. Cochav; and the Director of the Budget Bureau, Mr. S. Soroker, met with Dr. Y. Ilan, Director of the Information and Civic Education Service.

The meeting was intended to prepare the lectures for addressing audiences throughout the country on the subject of the 1966-70 draft budget.

Other issues under discussion include the matter in Jerusalem yesterday with Mr. Shmuel Divon, Adviser to the Prime Minister on Arab Affairs.

It is understood by the appropriate authority that the amount for several million dollars will be launched in the U.S., France, Italy and Belgium.

Wanted Man Held On Fraud Charges

TEL AVIV. — "By youth for youth" is the slogan of this year's Adloyada, the traditional Purim carnival which is to be held on Sunday afternoon, March 13, Deputy Mayor Joseph Brotstein told the press yesterday.

Five-thousand schoolchildren have been practicing hard for the past few weeks in order to be ready for the dress rehearsal deadline next week.

With only 21 days to go, dozens of school workshops throughout the city are completing the vast arrays of masks and decorations for the sections in the 90-minute parade.

A novelty this year will be the participation of 40 women of the Polish State Circus.

The chairman of the Travel and Tourist Association, Mrs. M. Fratton, admitted here, however, after talks on Sunday with the Finance Ministry, that the chances of a return to the 40 per cent tax level were "poor." A second meeting with the Ministry is scheduled for next week, when the question of a subsidy for the travel agents will be discussed.

LYDDA'S RATES TO RISE 20%

LYDDA. — The Municipal Council here on Tuesday decided on a 20 per cent rise in rates. Mayor Alexander Ramil explained that as the Municipality's budget had a deficit of IL100,000 it was decided to increase rates to prevent cuts in local services.

It was decided that reductions would be granted to large families.

MR. GIDEON RYAN, under suspicion of obtaining money under false pretences via a vision of the Nazi regime, has been previously released on bail in Jerusalem.

Bin-Nun Takes Over from Tanous

TEL AVIV. — All of Defense Minister's command staff, including Tanous, on Tuesday morning transferred command of the Navy to Adel Yehiel Hillel.

Tanous left a plane, the same one used by Hillel to fly to Tel Aviv. The two commanders exchanged a few words and shook hands to mark the change of guard.

Adel Tanous, who has been Commandant of the Navy for the past six years, will be succeeded by the officers and ratings of the service in an Order of the Day for the assistance they had given him during his period of command.

Under the new proposals the income brackets will progress by units of IL1,000 after the first bracket of IL2,000.

Instead of starting off at a minimum rate of 25 per cent on the first IL1,000 (after the basic personal and family exemptions), the new scale starts off at a rate of 25 per cent on the first IL1,000, 25 per cent on the next IL1,000, 30 per cent on the next IL1,000, 45 per cent on the next IL1,000.

David was detained for a fortnight ago. By the time of his release he had managed to escape from the prison and claimed he stole and abandoned his car after another in a bid to cover his tracks.

David was charged with obtaining under false pretences several thousand pounds from numerous persons in different parts of the country. He also allegedly obtained radios, transistors and cameras from shopkeepers in exchange for worthless samples.

2 2000 — 2 2000 — 2 2000

THIS country has just passed through an epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease, and it is only right that the public should have some notion of what happened. Its results might easily have been tragic. It is no exaggeration to state that the way the veterinary authorities dealt with this epidemic constitutes a landmark in the history of veterinary science.

The epidemic was caused by the Asiatic strain of foot-and-mouth disease. It is important to note that previously no efficient method of dealing with this strain of the virus had ever been elaborated. This virus bears very heavily on pedigree dairy cattle subjected to the physiological strain of a high milk yield and is less virulent for other cattle.

The new strain of the virus could be fought only because Professor A. Komarov, a bacteriologist at the University, succeeded in attenuating it to such an extent that live virus could be safely used for the purpose of vaccinating healthy dairy cattle. This has never previously been done for any strain of foot-and-mouth disease and must be ranked as an achievement of a very high order. There can be little doubt that the method used by Prof. Komarov will eventually be applied to all strains of foot-and-mouth disease in other parts of the world.

In view of the vast economic importance of foot-and-mouth disease, manifested by the fact that losses amount to many millions of dollars in every epidemic, it is easy to see the importance of the work carried out on this particular occasion at the Veterinary Institute at Bet Dagon, in the case a brilliant piece of laboratory work was followed by a remarkable piece of executive work by the Veterinary department.

Dr. Freund, the head of the Veterinary Service, and his assistants deserve the gratitude of the whole community, which has been saved from much greater potential loss. Dr. Menahem Sturman, the chief veterinarian of the Hekalot Cattle Insurance Company, which is responsible for animal care in all the settlements, is to be both congratulated and thanked for his quick appreciation of the laboratory findings and his decision to have all the herds under his charge vaccinated. This decision was not a light one to take when an enormous investment was at stake. It needs no great stretch of the imagination to appreciate the anxiety of all concerned in translating a laboratory experiment, even though well-planned and executed, to the field under such circumstances.

During this epidemic the effects of attenuated live virus was compared to that of dead virulent virus. It was definitely proved that the live attenuated virus gave better results. For the first time in the history of foot-and-mouth disease it was possible to stop an epidemic dead in its tracks, within a herd in which a few cases had already appeared. This is an achievement of which we may well be proud.

Dr. Freund, who is to retire shortly, has finished his term of service with a tour de force and we are encouraged to believe we have reached the stage where science is beginning to give us economic returns in economic life.

His wide experience and wisdom in veterinary matters will always remain a valuable asset to this country, even when he enters on his well-earned retirement.

We may add that Israel has no Veterinary Faculty. About a hundred young Israelis are now studying Veterinary Science abroad. It is time to think very seriously about establishing a faculty because its existence is the best way to ensure that veterinary practice will remain at the highest possible level.

Anglo-Cypriot Accord in Offing

British Bases Useless Without Population's Cooperation

By GEOFFREY WIGGODER
Special to The Jerusalem Post

The renewal of the talks in Cyprus provides a further opportunity to find the way out of a situation which has been described as "Alice in Wonderland." One year after agreement was reached in London on the principles of independence at all costs, and after two dates have been proclaimed as Independence Day, the issue remains bogged down on a number of details of which the most thorny is the size of the two bases which Britain is to retain as sovereign territory.

The matter is being handled in the traditional style of colonial bargaining. It will be recalled that Cyprus offered to allow Britain to retain as bases at all costs the bases of the British East African Air Force. It is hard to see what Cyprus can add to the NAMO and CENTO bases in Greece and Turkey. British spokesmen have explained that it is to defend the Middle East and protect the Commonwealth lifeline. But another issue is equally (even though the item may be secondary) important and the British representatives in the Persian Gulf — the nearest relevant points that may conceivably have to be defended — could be at least equally well defended from East Africa. If the example of American intervention in the Lebanon is being remembered, the situation could be met as one British official said: "We are as private citizens as we are as a 'British' force" (apart from which Malta is 1½ hours flying time away). But such speculation is presumably academic as the principle has been agreed upon by all concerned, and nobody here is questioning the need for British bases. Certainly not the Cypriots who look upon them as their main economic assets which are expected to bring £15-17,000,000 a year into the country.

This virus bears very heavily on pedigree dairy cattle subjected to the physiological strain of a high milk yield and is less virulent for other cattle.

For both sides, the recent development has, of course, been largely dictated by considerations of prestige. For the British, one suspects that the military have been insisting on the higher figure while the civil administration would be more willing to compromise. The Cypriots, however, are relying on Mr. Makarov to produce a magic solution out of a hat.

Greek-Turkish Unity

For both sides, the recent opportunity to obtain the confidence of Cyprus. Failure would result in renewed embitterment of the population and the loss of almost everything Britain has gained over the past year.

Of course, there are major military considerations. I have been trying to sound out reaction to the question "Why should Britain be allowed to stay at all?" In the case of East African Air Force, it is hard to see what Cyprus can add to the NAMO and CENTO bases in Greece and Turkey. British spokesmen have explained that it is to defend the Middle East and protect the Commonwealth lifeline. But another issue is equally (even though the item may be secondary) important and the British representatives in the Persian Gulf — the nearest relevant points that may conceivably have to be defended — could be at least equally well defended from East Africa. For Tax Morality's Sake

All-Round Goodwill

The military have not revealed the basis for the estimate of the required minimum since the bases were to be housed in a "British" base (apart from which Malta is 1½ hours flying time away). But such speculation is presumably academic as the principle has been agreed upon by all concerned, and nobody here is questioning the need for British bases. Certainly not the Cypriots who look upon them as their main economic assets which are expected to bring £15-17,000,000 a year into the country.

Future Existence

The two bases now under discussion are at Episkopi and Dhekelia in Southern Cyprus. I have paid a visit to the Episkopi base which also serves as headquarters for the Commander-in-Chief, Middle East. The two bases are major installations. Episkopi is located on the coast road. There are no harbour facilities — even potentially — at Episkopi, while at Dhekelia there is a small port to the north of the base. Dhekelia is approximately of the same size. I was consequently left with the impression that Britain's original figure of 175 square miles was exaggerated; the current offer of 130 square miles; and the possible consequences of accepting without hardship. On the other hand, the Cypriots' original offer of 36 square miles was impracticable — but I was informed that no Cypriot leader has ever visited the base to ascertain its requirements with his own eyes.

The fundamental impression that emerges in Cyprus is of goodwill on all sides. The Archibishop has done his bargaining and appears anxious for a settlement; Dr. Kutukian wants an agreement to ensure the fulfilment of the London and Zurich agreements from the Greek Cypriots; and between the large parties which was meant to obviate a rough election campaign. Confidence by the Archibishop could weaken his position and as far as I am concerned, he is the symbol of a peaceful united island within the British Commonwealth. Britain's future standing on the island is largely bound up with his strength.

One of the encouraging aspects of the bases wrangle has been the unity of the Greek and Turkish elements on this issue. Fifteen months ago they were at each other's throats; now they have shown a united front and their common cause has served to cement the recently found friendship. At this moment, Britain is as delightful a place as a soldier could hope to be stationed in. Construction of this base is of good will on all sides.
